December 2019

Dear parents and carers,

In preparation for the busy period of summer exams, I would like to invite your son/daughter to a weekly morning session of maths revision starting next term. Students have many different subjects to learn and I am hoping that by designating this time – with myself present – students can focus on their mathematics, without distraction.

Please understand that in order to make the session manageable, this opportunity is invitation only and aimed for those who need extra support for the higher exam and additional guidance on key topics.

This will give students the opportunity to discuss any areas they are finding difficult and share any problems with other students or myself. As it is weekly, students will get the opportunity to test each other and pick up valuable guidance in the process.

Please confirm that you are happy for your child to be excused from their tutorial period on the required morning. They will need to bring the graded booklet that will be issued before Christmas. There is limited availability and therefore I would like prompt responses, this way I can offer to other students if spaces become available.

Yours sincerely

Mr M Byford
